

It is with regret that I have removed this paper from the website. The cover page of this paper unambiguously stated “Conference paper” and “Draft work in progress. Please do not cite without permission of author. © Yi-Li Wu, 2002.” It is therefore most regrettable that, in violation of common academic standards and professional courtesy, this work-in-progress has apparently been cited without the author’s permission. The author has thus requested that the paper no longer be made available.

While the author is gratified by the interest in her work, her research over the past decade has also led her to revise some of the preliminary interpretations presented in this paper. Scholars who are interested in exchanging viewpoints are encouraged to contact her at the following address:

yiliwu2010@gmail.com

Sincerely,

Roger Hart

From the cover page, as originally posted:

God’s uterus: Benjamin Hobson and missionary “midwifery” in nineteenth-century China

Yi-Li Wu

Department of History

Albion College

611 E. Porter St.

Albion, MI 49224

ywu@albion.edu

Conference paper prepared for “The Disunity of Chinese Science,” University of Chicago, May 10-11, 2002.

Draft work in progress. Please do not cite without permission of author.

©Yi-Li Wu, 2002